

GLOBAL HISTORY

student conference

THE SIXTH INTERNATIONAL BERLIN GLOBAL HISTORY STUDENT CONFERENCE

JUNE 24TH - JUNE 26TH 2022, BERLIN

In recent years, global history has become one of the most ambitious and promising strands of historical research. The approach targets relations, flows, and actors that challenge the assumption of the nation state as a natural and inevitable category of historical analysis. It calls attention to the importance of transnational, trans-regional, or trans-local connections and their influence on the past.

But how can we actually "do global history" in practical terms? What are useful methods and techniques for researching and writing from a global perspective? How can global history complement but also challenge other disciplines? And conversely, what critiques and new ideas can other disciplines bring to global history?

We—a group of students in the MA Global History at Humboldt Universität and Freie Universität in Berlin—would like to invite you to discuss these issues with us at the fifth Global History Student Conference in Berlin by presenting your research projects to fellow students.

The field of global history is not limited to the modern period, and we invite scholars of the early modern, medieval or classical periods to consider submitting their research. Moreover, global history not only challenges geographical borders, it also tends to transcend disciplinary demarcations. Accordingly, we welcome proposals from any academic field that has points of contact with history (e.g. art history, area studies, social sciences, etc). Furthermore, since global history has only been part of the academic landscape for a few years (at least in terms of institutions and study programmes) we are all more or less beginners in this quest for interconnections, entanglements and conjunctures.

The goal is to exchange experiences and to work together in an open and non-competitive way. The last Conference, the 2019 edition, hosted forty participants from nearly twenty different countries, as it is our goal to engage with diverse voices in academia; thus, we strongly encourage applicants from historically underrepresented backgrounds to submit their proposals. We also explicitly invite undergraduate students: if you have ever written a paper or essay in this field, this is the perfect place to present it!

The Global History Student Conference will take place at the Friedrich-Meinecke-Institut in Berlin. The language of the conference is English, therefore please write your submissions in English. To register for the conference, please follow this three-step application process:

- Submit the registration form by the 15th of March 2022.
www.globalhistorystudentconference.wordpress.com/application
- Upload your 300-word abstract as a PDF file by the 15th of March 2022.
www.globalhistorystudentconference.wordpress.com/application
The abstract should be entitled according to the following format:
SurnameFirstnameShortTitle.pdf
- On acceptance of your paper, please send us a 2000-word summary for us to review by the 30th of April 2022.

We will be able to offer some financial support for transport to participants coming from outside of Berlin.

After their presentation to the conference, papers can be turned into full articles and submitted to the Global histories student journal, our sister project, for consideration of their publication. To read a review of our 2019 Global History Student Conference, check out Global histories 5, no. 2 at www.globalhistories.com.

Please note that the conference is intended to be held in-person in Berlin. At the moment, there is no intention of simultaneous digital participation (via Zoom or other software). The conference will be subject to any relevant COVID-19 guidelines maintained by the Freie Universität Berlin, the Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin, and the German federal government.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact us at conference@globalhistories.com

We are looking forward to hearing from you!

Your Conference Team

Header image courtesy of the University of Texas Libraries (The University of Texas at Austin)

